Implementing Stop the Pressure

Wednesday 2 December 2015

Manchester Conference Centre, Manchester

This conference focuses on a practical guide to eliminating avoidable pressure ulcers, implementing the national stop the pressure campaign and implementing NEW NICE Quality Standard for Pressure Ulcers which was published in June 2015.

"We are starting to see a plateau and we are still seeing large variation between organisations" Suzanne Banks, Professional Advisor, NHS England, February 2015

"The issue is pressure ulcers and the impact of them on patients, families, carers, staff and organisations is huge. The lifestyle of a person who has suffered a pressure ulcer is changed forever, their ability to lead a pain-free, risk-free life in the future, affected." Dr Ruth May NHS England, 10th December 2014

"The new NICE quality standard on pressure ulcers covers the prevention, assessment and management of pressure ulcers in all settings, including hospitals, care homes with and without nursing, and people's own homes. It covers people of all ages, from neonates to older people. A review of death and severe harm incidents reported to the National Reporting and Learning System found that pressure ulcers were the largest proportion of patient safety incidents in 2011/2012, accounting for 19% of all reports. It has been acknowledged that a significant proportion of pressure ulcers are avoidable (NHS Stop The Pressure). The prevalence of pressure ulcers is 1 of the 4 common harms recorded in the NHS Safety Thermometer, a local improvement tool for measuring, monitoring and analysing patient harms across a range of settings, including care homes, community nursing and hospitals on a monthly basis." NICE Quality Standard for Pressure Ulcers, June 2015, NICE

The conference will begin with an update from NHS England and will discuss the stop the pressure campaign and path details and Pressure Ulcers and the 6C's and continue with a consideration of the New Quality Standard for pressure ulcers from NICE looking forward to implementation.

"Avoidable pressure ulcers are a key indicator of the quality of nursing care. Preventing them happening will improve all care for vulnerable patients. The 'Stop the Pressure' campaign was launched by NHS Midlands and East as part of their ambition to make life better for patients." Stop the Pressure 2014

The conference will continue with practical case studies in reducing pressure ulcers, implementing stop the pressure and in depth extended sessions focusing on pressure ulcer grading and reporting including unstageable pressure ulcers, and developing your skills in root cause analysis and investigation. There will be an evidence update session looking at the latest evidence on risk assessment, factors associated with severe pressure ulcers and pain as an indicator of pressure ulcer development. The event will also look at this issue of avoidability and discuss the latest consensus on what is actually considered unavoidable. There will also be a focus on the important issue of eliminating pressure ulcers in the community.
